

POEMS67.COM

POEM IN ENGLISH

CONNIE FIFE

THE KNOWING

the re-invention of oneself through the tongues of whispering mountains the re-arrangement of the universe because a spider wrapped her legs around a star
the knowing
the remembering of stone's story while walking down a dried riverbed being serenaded by crickets singing the blues because everyone except them has forgotten
the knowing
which trail to follow through clear-cut forests which scent will lead you home because a thousand-year-old bear still lives amongst the dead bodies feeding off their memory
the knowing
the recollection of the loudness in silence the clarity of unspoken words while sound crashes earthbound because it is in what is not said that the truth sits
the knowing the peeling back of ones own skin to discover that the lizard sleeping against your spine was born the same moment as you because she knew that one day you would need her sharp tongue to survive
the knowing
the rediscovery of crow perched on your shoulder her claws leaving scratch marks against your heart because you need to be reminded that you are alive on days when you are numbed into speechlessness
the knowing
the glimpse of your reflection in the eyes of a stranger who is leaning against the chest of a cedar tree while cars spit at her then mock her existence because she refuses to roll over on the sidewalk and you need to be reminded of why you were born
the knowing

the recreating of ceremony at the hands of change while wandering through unknown places because history has turned us into our own lodges when it tried to bound our mouths and tie our words
the knowing
the acknowledgment of ones ancestors must become an ordinary event taking place with each breath keeping them alive so their voices touch our skin with urgency and desire in our ribcages because it is their shadows that protect us
the knowing
the importance of embracing our places or remembering because inside their bodies live our beloved through their existence we are fed love on a plate of resistance while we swallow stars dropped down our throats by spider